SORROWFUL TALE OF THE SEA.

Three seamen dead, sails carried away, deckload of lumber washed overboard, deckhouses battered in by the waves, make up the harrowing tale of the sea told by First Mate Frank Lanigan, of the American bark Penobscot, in command of Captain Coombs, which arrived in Baltimore yesterday with a cargo of asphalt from Trinidad, West Indies. The members of the crew who never returned on the bark were Carroll Bray, son of Capt. Bray, former master of the Penobscot, who was taken ill with pneumonia, died and was buried at sea; Second Mate John Lockwood, who was injured by the cargo being carried overboard, and who also died and was buried on the Gold Coast, and Seaman John Nelson, who was drowned at Trinidad and was buried on the island.

When the trim bark sailed from New York January 22 bound for ports on the west coast of Africa, she had as happy a crew as ever trimmed the main brace, and not one had any premonition of the distressing voyage ahead.

The Penobscot had hardly cleared Sandy Hook when she encountered a terrific northwest hurricane, accompanied by mountainous seas. Notwithstanding the vessel was put under reduced sail, huge seas swept her fore and aft. A monster sea struck the vessel over her starboard bow, smashing in the forward deck house and shifted her cargo of lumber. Her cabin and store house were flooded, damaging her supplies so that the crew had to live on hard bread and canned meats the rest of the voyage. A second heavy sea struck the unfortunate vessel, throwing her on her beam ends, sweeping overboard Second Mate John Lockwood and part of the deck load of lumber. The bark was at once layed to and a crew manning the lifeboat succeeded in saving Lockwood, who managed to keep afloat with the assistance of some floating lumber. The following day was spent by the crew trying to get the cargo in shape, when a second storm came on, more terrific than the first, and while the crew were manning the pumps a giant sea struck her, sweeping overboard the entire deck load of lumber, part of which jammed Mate Lockwood against the ship's capstan, injuring him to such an extent that he died when the vessel arrived at Cape Coast Castle, one of the discharging ports.

Mate Lanigan stated that the seas during the second gale were terrible to behold. Many of the sails had already been carried away and the vessel presented a pitiable appearance. The gale finally subsided, temporary repairs were made and from then on the trip was good to the bark's arrival at Axim, reaching that port 56 days out from New York.

The vessel's cargo was distributed at about 15 ports on the west African coast, finishing at Lome, one of the German possessions. The bark then cleared for Trinidad, where she was ordered to take on her present cargo.

THREW RED PEPPER.

Mrs. Nathan Schwartz was alone in her husband's jewelry store in New York yesterday afternoon when a well-dressed young man entered and asked to see an assortment of gems.

Smiling sweetly—she hasn't been married long—Mrs. Schwartz spread out a tray of glittering rings. The young man picked out one for $150 and held it up to the light. As he did so he dropped one hand into his pocket, drew it out suddenly and threw a handful of red pepper into Mrs. Schwartz's eyes.

Then, while she groped about blindly, screaming in agony, he picked up the remaining rings and darted out. His greed was fatal, for the slight delay gave Mrs. Schwartz time to utter a shriek that startled the neighborhood. George Townsend was passing the shop and, hearing the cry and sizing up the attitude of the departing thief, he grabbed hold of the man. They went to the pavement together with Townsend on top. Policeman Boss came along and arrested the thief.

Mrs. Schwartz was temporarily blind, but in the police station she identified the prisoner by his voice. The stolen rings were found in his pockets. He said he was William Armstrong, 20, an embroidery worker, of Plainfield, N. J.

LIVED TOGETHER IN SILENCE.

A report was received on Tuesday at Worcester, Mass., that Major William F. Pond, a wealthy resident of that city, died at Johnson City, Tenn., after a short illness. It has long been reported that Pond and his second wife, married for more than forty years, lived in their mansion without exchanging a word for more than 20 years. Mrs. Pond says only 14 years, however, and but twice in the remaining six.

A short time ago Pond attempted to transfer his property to his children, but his wife secured an injunction restraining the transfer, alleging fraud. He then started for Johnson City to live with his sister. Before reaching his sister's home she died. Her death came as a great surprise, and he never recovered from the shock. Pond was 81 years old.

CALIFORNIA'S BIG YIELD OF WALNUTS.

Nine thousand tons of English walnuts is the estimate of experts on this season's yield in southern California. This will be the largest crop ever harvested, and 2,000 tons above that of a year ago. Weather conditions have been extremely favorable, and unless there should be a sudden appearance of blight or an unusually hot summer it is expected the harvest will exceed the estimate.

Local dealers incline to the belief that market prices will be considerably lower than last year, when the production was less than 7,000 tons, somewhat below the average.—[San Francisco Call.

ALEXANDRIA GAZETTE AND VIRGINIA ADVERTISER

FRIDAY EVENING. AUG. 21, 1908.

IN HIS speech in Baltimore Wednesday night Booker T. Washington, making the annual address before the Negro Business Men's National League, said in part:

There is no hope for the negro race, or any people, except in the direction of conservative work. This constructive work must find a place and a need right in the communities where we live. There are golden opportunities in the cultivation of the soil, work in wood, in iron, the home, in the world of trade. No matter what the excitement or the temptation may be in local politics or national politics, let us resolve that nothing shall turn us aside for a minute from getting the essential and fundamental things in life. Political parties and public issues and public men change and disappear, but the fundamentals of industry, thrift and high, rugged character remain forever. Without them, all else is vain. With them, nothing can defeat us.

This is good and sensible advice but it is feared that it will take more than a Booker Washington to induce the colored race as a whole to heed it.

FORMER vice-president Adlai E. Stevenson, democratic candidate for governor of Illinois, went to Chicago yesterday and conferred with national chairman Mack as to the general situation and to the part the national committee will take in the state campaign. Speaking of the democratic outlook in the national campaign this year, Mr. Stevenson said in his address at the Iroquois luncheon:

It looks like a return of the democratic spirit of 1892, when Cleveland was elected. Everywhere I have spoken I have found democrats, formerly antagonistic to Mr. Bryan, with him now, and they tell me they wish to support me also. It is astonishing the assurances of support I have received from republicans, who declare that they believe the time has come for a change. If we put our shoulders to the wheel we can bring about a great democratic victory in November.

This is all true; the democrats have but to stand together and work together to elect their candidates next time.

A GENTLEMAN from a neighboring county who has recently returned from a trip to South America says that in the port of Rio de Janerio, Brazil, probably the finest in the world, in which were crowded ships from nearly every country in the world, he saw the United States flag flying from but one small vessel. This caused him such surprise that he made frequent inquiry as to the cause, and in every instance the reply was: "The American tariff." And this is absolutely true but the ship subsidists would make people believe to the contrary.

THIS IS Virginia Day at the Hot Springs and Mr. Taft made a speech hoping to make himself "solid" in Virginia, which state some federal officeholders or would be officeholders are trying to make him believe he can carry at the November election. He will but have his troubles for his pains, as Virginia is as sure to go democratic at the next election as the sun rises on that day. Still the occasion will give Mr. Taft, if he is a discerning man, an opportunity of "sizing up" some of those who are endeavoring to dupe him.

MR. WILLIAM R. MEREDITH, of Richmond, has declined to meet Mr. Harry St. George Tucker in joint debate concerning the reasons why Mr. Meredith should or should not support Judge William H. Taft for the presidency this fall. This is wise in Mr. Meredith.

Washington, Aug. 21.

As a part of its crusade against the "yellow peril" the National Anti-Asiatic Immigration League will urge a general boycott of Chinese laundries. The scheme was launched at the meeting of the organization last night by John H. Brinkman, a prominent local labor leader, and was received with approval. Through refusal to patronize celestials who operate laundries Brinkman declared the Chinese would ultimately be forced to leave the country.

A canned oratory campaign has been started by the District of Columbia Democratic Association. Last night a large gathering of the faithful at the club rooms of the organization listened to their "master's voice" through the medium of a monster $500 phonograph.

Sixty commission and produce merchants of Pittsburg unite in a complaint against the Pennsylvania railroad, filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, alleging the exaction of unlawful charges as storage, in addition to demurrage. The Pennsylvania State law provides against exaction of additional charges, but is not applicable to interstate shipments. The storage charges complained of run from $1 per car per day for delay, after the second 48 hours up to $4 a day for delay, after the third 48 hours.

In denial of the statement that a large number of the Oklahoma national banks will surrender their national charters and enter the state banking system, Acting Comptroller of the Currency Kane today issued a statement declaring that out of the 310 national banks only 57 had entered into the guaranty scheme. Twenty seven of these have informed the comptroller that they have notified the state banking board of their desire to withdraw from the banking agreement. Seven will surrender their national charters and reorganize as state banks, and two have already gone into voluntary liquidation for that purpose.

Fox, a brother-in-law. The men were away harvesting and the mothers were attending a theatrical performance. While Mrs. Frederick W. That the whole house was not ransacked and other jewelry to the value of more than $60,000 was not stolen was probably due to the crying of Mrs. Woerz's small child, who had been awakened from its sleep.

MRS. HAINS'S STORY.

Mrs. Claudia Libbey Hains, wife of Capt. Peter C. Hains, jr., who shot and killed William E. Annis, consented in Boston yesterday to make public her side of the story of her life with her husband, and the events which led up to the terrible tragedy.

Mrs. Hains said:

"This whole harrowing affair was a conspiracy pure and simple. My husband was a dupe. Thornton Hains is the arch fiend. In my husbands' absence the villian tried to make love to me, and I hated him. He poisoned my husband's mind. They were capable of anything. Both hated Annis, because Thornton Hains claimed that Mr. Annis prevented him from making an advantageous sale of his writings.

"When I spurned him, Thornton got my husband's ear and poured poison into it. Yes, he poisoned my husband's mind against me, he helped abuse me, helped starve me, helped drug me, and was present when, starved and drugged, they made me sign papers.

"My husband was a brute to me, but I bore with him for my children's sake. He beat me—me, his wife—not once, but many times. How many times I cannot recall; I have no desire to recall them.

"I can hardly remember what happened when my husband and Thornton Hains and their father forced me to sign papers. Sometimes, like a nightmare, I can see Thornton's cold, sneering face, and I fancy he is gathering material from my suffering for a story.

"With nothing in my stomach but drugs, and two days and nights without sleep, they shoved some papers across the table and stood over me threateningly. I don't know positively whether I signed them, but I presume I did. I don't know or care. My mother has told me that for days afterward my mind was a blank.

"My husband and his brother are rascals. I suffered untold agony from their cruelties, and I hope they will both be strung up."

Mr. Taft's Speech.

Hot Springs, Va., Aug. 21.—Mr. Taft opened the campaign in the south today by speaking to the republicans of Virginia and surrounding states this afternoon. The exercises took place in the baseball park and were begun with speeches by Congressman Slemp, the only republican representative in Congress from Virginia, and S. Brown Allen, U. S. marshal of the Staunton district. Several special trains from Charlottesville and way stations arrived and by noon the crowd of republicans was quite large. The black republicans were in the majority.

When Mr. Taft arrived Congressman Slemp uttered a loud wail over the fact that the railroad company had stopped selling tickets for Hot Springs early in the morning because of its inability to handle the crowds that wanted to attend.

Mr. Taft's speech, in large part, was an appeal to the "Solid South" to break away from the democratic column. After discussing general issues, he said: "Every one having the interest of the country at heart would rejoice to have the solid south as a democratic asset in every national campaign broken up. It would be better for the states themselves; it would be better for the country. The republican party is not the sectional party which the fact that the south always supports the democratic party would indicate. The republican party has improved the waterways, is building the Panama canal, and has started the movement for the redemption of swamp lands, the conservation of forests and water resources, and is taking many other steps that are for the development of the south. The growth and success of the mining and iron industries of the south are directly due to laws enacted by the republican party.

In our dependencies when offices were to be filled in the Philippines, Porto Rico and Cuba, no attention has been paid to the partisan proclivities of the appointees, and there are today in the Philippines as many democrats among the Americans as republicans serving the government there. Leading democrats of the south have complained, and with much ground, that men at the south have but little influence in the executive branch of the government of Washington. The reason is that the south has always been considered by the democracy, and especially the northern democracy, as a part of the country certain to support the democratic ticket, and therefore when the republican party is in power, it is not either natural or to be expected that it should summon to its executive the leading men from the opposing party in the south. The only way by which the south can cure this matter is by independence of action and the support of the republican ticket.

"I know the south is a conservative portion of the country. By tradition, its attachment to the democratic party is firm; but a party represents principles, and when the principles change, though the name of the party remain the same, it would seem that after awhile the traditional attachment to party would rest lightly on an intelligent community. Many independent democrats in the south agree with republican party in all its main economic doctrines. Since 1890 the manufacturing intrests of the south have exceeded her agricultural intrests, the industrial expansion of the south exceeds that of any other part in this country, and is really the marvel of the world. * * * The Spanish war led to the entering of the flower of the young men of the south into the army of the United States in order to uphold the country's cause. This did much to remove sectional feeling lingering after the civil war, and served to unite in a common brotherhood the blue and the gray. * * *.

The republican party has always been in favor of a liberal construction of the constitution to maintain the national power, and its attitude in this regard might in times past have justified a southern democrat in assuming that there was at least one principle left of the old democracy to which he might adhere by voting the democratic ticket; but that resource in the present Denver platform has been completely eliminated and propositions are there made which the most federalistic stateman might find very difficult to work out under our Constitution. It is the duty of the republicans of the south to take advantage of this mental attitude I have described on the part of many independent democrats. * * * I know what a burden southern republicans have had to carry. I know the courage it has taken for them to remain republicans when their cause seemed hopeless. But I believe a change is coming."

Another portion of Judge Taft's speech was in the nature of a reply to Bryan's speech of acceptance, particularly to the charge that the people do not rule, and that the republican party is responsible for the corporation abuses that have recently developed. He pointed to the overwhelming majorities of McKinley and Roosevelt, the maintenance of the gold standard and a protective tariff, and the conduct of the Roosevelt administration as expressive of the will of the people. In answer to Bryan's excoriation of the present rules of the House and the power of the speaker under them, Mr. Taft called attention to the fact that they were originally adopted in the administration of Speaker Reed for the purpose of expediting legislation and were subsequently adopted by a democratic House for the same purpose. Referring to the corporation evils complained of, he said:

"They were due to the fallibility of human nature and the willingness of ambitious and unscrupulous men to turn an instrumentality necessary in human progress to a vicious purpose. No party is or can be responsible for evils thus arising unless it fails to correct them when they become known."

Judge Taft dwelt at length upon President Roosevelt's efforts to purge the country of the evils, the legislation already enacted in that direction, and its results, saying:

"Secret rebates and unlawful discriminations have been actually abolished. No monopoly of business in any line is now maintained by a secret reduction of freight rates to it which is denied to competitors. All combinations are diligently consulting the law. The fear of the statute and its penalties have been put in the hearts of its former violators. The people have ruled through the republican party!"

The Haines-Annis Affair.

New York, Aug. 21.—Refusing food, constantly muttering of his wife's alleged downfall, and apparently in a state bordering on absolute collapse, Capt. Peter C Hains, jr., today is under the constant care of Dr. Platt, prison physician of Queens county jail. "He robbed me of my wife. I loved her. My God, this is terrible," is a sentence which is constantly in the mouth of Annis's slayer and his counsel and his family seems to fear that his mind will break if it has not already done so, under the strain.

In the adjoining cell is T. Jenkins Hains, a strange contrast to his brother. Cool and calm the novelist seems to have no nerves. He refuses now to discuss the case in any way and with set face sits and listens to the muttered ejaculations of his brother. Occasionally, when Annis's slayer raises his voice, the cold, silent brother seems deeply moved and says, "Brace up old man, it will come out all right yet."

A whirlwind of stories, conjectures and statements as to Annis' relations with Mrs. Hains are in circulation and it is difficult to sift the true from the false. That Mrs. Hains will testify for her husband, one story, is contradicted by the report that she will accuse him of degeneracy and of this her counsel says positively that no charges of that sort have been made, either by his client or by her father. He further states that the claim of the Hains adherents that Mrs. Hains made four confessions of guilt with Annis is unfounded. He asserts that she does not now and never has admitted that her relations with the man her husband killed were other than proper.

New York, Aug. 21.—An after clap of sensation resulted in the Hains-Annis scandal this afternoon when the story of Marie Louise Sulmande, the French maid in charge of the two children of T. Jenkins Hains, was made public. In this statement the maid declares that the author-brother of Captain Hains is the father and she the mother of one of the children who has always been supposed to be the child of T. Jenkins Hains' deceased wife. Mrs. Hains died in Washington in 1906, it is alleged, and the baby in question was born in December, 1907, in a Brooklyn hospital, according to the French woman.

Russian Atrocities.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 21.—One of the most revolting crimes ever committed by Russian revolutionists has just been reported from Yurievka in Yakatorinoslav province. Enraged at a Jewish family named Edelstein, accused of giving information to the authorities, revolutionists visited the Edelstein home at night and threw two bombs into a window. The mob then fired on the household, killing the father, a daughter, a woman guest and her child and injuring the mother, a son, son-in-law and two grand children. The mob then withdrew but later marched on the hospital, where the injured persons had been taken, overpowered the nurses and guards and shot to death the mother and son. The outrage has aroused the authorities and the mob leaders are being hunted down.

Prisoners in the jail at Saratov, it was reported today, killed two of their numbers, suspected of being spies, in the jail corridor.

Race Feeling.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 21.—New England is generally considered to be the negro's paradise, but the situation here today shows that the recent race wars in Illinois and other parts of the country have been effective in rousing popular feeling against the black man even in the home of abolition. Harry Tyler, a Lynn negro, is being guarded from mob violence after being rescued from an attack which had far less to incite it than the negro outrages in Springfield. Tyler was arrested late last night by an officer who found him trying to break into a store. When the policeman found himself severely handled in the fight that ensued he called for help and the crowd that quickly gathered helped so effectively that a squad of police reserves had to use their clubs to save Tyler from being pounded to death.

The Standard Oil Fine.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—In accordance with the ruling of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, Chief Clerk Small, in the absence of District Attorney Sims, today, on behalf of the government, filed a petition for a rehearing in the decision reversing Judge Landis' imposition of a fine of $29,240,000 upon the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. The government has no expectation of having its plea granted. When the request for a rehearing is refused, the next step will be to get the Supreme Court to vacate the decision of the appellate court by the issuance of a writ of certiorari. In a caustic criticism of the court of appeals, the government declares its act has converted the anti-trust and rebating laws into dead letters and opened wide the gates for all sorts of corporation abuses in interstate commerce.

Tonight he will open his real campaign for the office of chief executive by delivering the first of a series of set speeches. His subject will be the question of tariff revision and Mr. Bryan stated today that he expected to so compare the two platforms that the issue will be squarely joined.

ROW OVER NEW SCHOOL.

An injunction suit was filed in the Circuit Court of Alexandria county, yesterday by James E. Clements, superintendent of schools, of that county against the school board of Arlington district and John F. Morris and H. Schuring, contractors, to restrain them from building the proposed new schoolhouse on Fort Myer Heights.

The rule to show cause was served by the sheriff upon the school board and Contractors Morris and Schuring. It summoned them to appear on Monday morning next at Alexandria county court house before Judge Thornton and show cause why they should not be enjoined from proceeding with work on the schoolhouse.

The bill filed by Mr. Clements charges that the building is being constructed from obselete plans that do not meet with the approval of the State board of education; that Morris, one of the contractors for the building, is a member of the board of school trustees, and under the law has no right to bid on school work, and that Crandal Mackey, who, by virtue of his office as commonwealth's attorney for the county, is a public school officer, has undertaken, contrary to law, to indemnify the bonding company which has given $5,000 security to the school board as a guarantee that Morris and Schuring will fulfill their contract. Mr. Clements also charges that the contract for the building was given before bids had been asked for in the public press, as required by law.

A PECULIAR EXPERIENCE.

A well known cabinet maker who generally during his leisure period loiters about Duke street wharf, had a peculiar experience yesterday evening. Two well dressed men approached him and requested him to take them out boat riding, promising to pay him on his return. One was deaf and dumb and the other's voice was scarcely audible. After embarking the one who could talk a little informed him that he was liable to be brought home a corpse as he was subject to epileptic fits and a habit of his was to turn the boat over and he said the dumb man was not much better, as he had heart trouble, and was liable to drop dead any moment and if either or both had to die they would rather be on the water. This unnerved the man in charge of the boat, and he immediately called a friend on the wharf, but in less than ten minutes he had landed his passengers and was very much relieved. They offered him a $1 bill, but he says he was afraid to accept it.

THE EMERSON COMPANY.

The Emerson Steam Pump Company, on Tuesday last, made some of the largest shipments in the history of the company. Three of their largest pumps were shipped to San Francisco to be used on an important irrigation project; four more, two of which were the largest manufactured by the company, were sent to the United States engineers in charge of the lock and dam construction on the Ohio river, near Pittsburg, and one went to Texas for use in rice irrigation. The business of the Emerson Company is increasing to an extent that surpasses the expectations of the managers.

EXCURSIONS.

As will be seen by an advertisemen', Post F, Travelers' Protective Association, will give an excursion on the palace steamer Jamestown tonight. As this is pleasant weather and the association a clever aggregation of business men who will look to the comfort of their friends, and as a great many tickets have been sold in advance it will be readily seen that it will be well-attended.

Attention is also called to the excursion of Alexandria Lodge of Elks to Marshall Hall, Thursday, August 27.

ATTEMPTED ROBBERY.

About 5 o'clock this morning an attempt was made to enter the cigar factory of Messrs. Jas. W. Pettey & Co. The noise disturbed a neighbor who discovered a white boy who had broken open the windows in the rear of the premises at 126 south Royal street. He had pried the latch off the factory door and it was then that the neighbor scared the would-be robber off. Nothing was missing, however.

ANOTHER ACCIDENT.

Mrs. Robert Alexander Arnold while on her return from Washington last night after nine o'clock in attempting to alight from an electric car near Fayette street fell and was badly hurt. She was picked up by friends and conveyed to her home where she received medical treatment. It is evident the officials in charge of the train knew nothing of the accident as the train was not stopped.

TRYING THE SPEED.

It is said that in a brush yesterday between the Tryto, owned by Mr. Joseph Moore, and the Mae, owned by Mr. Bruce Emerson, the former came out victorious. The Tryto has had the damage repaired which was occasioned by the boat coming in contact with the piles at the foot of Duke street a few nights since, and the owner and a party of friends will take a trip to Colonial Beach tomorrow.

SILENCE BROKEN BY A FIT.

The usual silence of the Police Court was broken yesterday by a noise resembling the yell of a rhinoceros. Officer Roberts rushed to the place from which it emanated and found it was only an old offender who had fallen in a fit. When he regained consciousness he was given 30 days in the workhouse.

THE RAILROAD SCHEDULES.

The president, chairman of the transportation committee and secretary of the Chamber of Commerce had a conference with Mr. C. H. Ackert, vice president and general manager of the Southern Railway Co., yesterday, in connection with the adjustment of the present passenger schedules of that road at Alexdria. The matter was carefully considered and assurances were given by Mr. Ackert that it was the company's desire to do nothing inimical to the best interests of Alexandria and, to that end, he will hold a conference with president W. W. Finley, of the Southern, who is now absent from his office as soon as he returns. It is to be sincerely hoped that the result of this conference will have the effect of putting Alexandria in, at least, the same position as it occupied before the recent changes in the schedule, which have caused so much general dissatisfaction.

STEAMER CLEARED.

The American steamship Mae, which brought a cargo of phosphate rock to Alexandria, completed discharging today and in tow of the tug M. M. Davis cleared for Newport News, where she goes to the shipyard to have some repair work done to her hull. The machinery of the Mae became disabled while coming up the bay. She came to this port, however, under her own steam. Repair work requires a visit to the shipyard before she can return to service. A crew will be shipped at Newport News. The big steamer will load a cargo of about 3,000 tons of soft coal for a South American port. The cargo of the Mae was discharged in three working days at the pier of the Alexandria Fertilizer and Chemical Company.

POLICE COURT.

[Justice H. B. Caton presiding.]

The following cases were disposed of this morning:

Christopher Devitt, arrested by Officer Ferguson, for being drunk in the street, was sent to the workhouse for 30 days.

James R. Clark, arrested by Officer Roberts for obtaining a meal from a restaurant and refusing to pay for same was fined $5.

Peter Hall and Harry Sims, arrested on complaint of Mrs. Harrington, were dismissed.

AMUSEMENTS.

The motion picture houses continue to attract crowds and the programme is well worth seeing. It is remarkable how a company can give such a good entertainment at such a small price of admission. A first class show is promised tonight.

HOSPITAL DAY.

Alexandria's Hospital day at Luna Park on Wednesday was a very gratifying success, and the committees (particularly Messrs. A. D. Brockett and Julian Y. Williams) deserve and will receive the sincere congratulations and thanks of all good citizens, the lasting gratitude of the "Lady Managers," and countless blessings from hundreds of little folks, for they not only created substantial help and interest for the hospital, but afforded to hundreds of little boys and girls a delightful outing, a day of fun and frolic in the sunshine and air, which, without the committee's efforts, some of them would not have enjoyed during their young lives. POISON WAS NOT PALATABLE.

Mrs. Alice Adams, who lives in Washington, and is old enough to know better, quarreled with her husband yesterday morning and then went upstairs and took something out of an ancient bottle which she felt sure was poison. Whether it was or not it hurt viciously after a little while, and Mrs. Adams repented of her suicide plans. She screamed lustily and finally a crowd came around and eventually an ambulance hauled her off to the Emergency Hospital. There an obliging surgeon pumped her out.

"I didn't know it was going to hurt so much," she said when she was out of danger. "If I had known that it would hurt that way, I would have killed myself in some other way."

When Mr. Adams got home he seemed surprised.

"Where are you going my little boy?" "I am going to market, sir, to buy a pound of Auth's Sausages.

French Subscribers Protest Against State Service.

From day to day the telephone crisis grows worse. In spite of the promises of the administration, the subscribers have experienced no notable improvement in the wretched telephone service. Nor does the future appear any more promising than the present.

The Association of Telephone Subscribers has now been at work for four years, and no one can accuse it of having lacked in good will, patience and disinterestedness. We have studied the telephone question in place of an administration asleep in routine. With the assistance of eminent specialists of France and foreign countries we have established a programme of reform.

This programme M. Berard promised to study, but he only eluded the question and made the subscribers a source of ridicule. His successor, M. Simyan, has studied the problem, having recognized its utility and urgency, and adopted it entirely in principle. Unfortunately the draft of law which he presented is absolutely imperfect and inapplicable, due both to the wording and to the opposition that the proposition has already met in the chamber and the systematic hostility of the administration.

Again, parliament by itself is powerless to reform the telephone service and to put on foot a rational and coherent project, for the administration will not furnish the necessary information.

We thus have a complete failure of reform.

To be patient any longer in the presence of this lamentable failure of the administration is impossible. An energetic and radical remedy is necessary for an anarchic situation. We do not any longer care for promises which are never fulfilled and which after four years of delay and waiting end in total ruin.

Our telephone service continues from bad to worse. Our instruments are the most defective in existence. They make us the laughingstock of the civilized world.

As a matter of fact, the state is absolutely powerless to exploit the telephone, a most delicate business and one of a peculiar nature.

The State Is Incapable From a Financial Point of View.

To provide a telephone service sufficient for present needs and to assist its future for Paris as well as the provinces many hundreds of millions of francs will be required.

The financial requirements and budget appropriations will not permit the state to make such an effort.

Again, the proposition now before the government calls for only $8,400,000 in six annual payments. One might as well throw a drop of water into the ocean.

The State Is Incapable From a Technical Point of View.

The state has proved its inefficiency to rapidly put on foot a rational and practical plan of reform. The slowness and complication of administrative routine, the inertia of the bureaucrats, do not permit of a timely and thorough adoption of improvements realized by science. By the time it has been decided to install a new system it is already old and has been replaced by another.

The State Is Incapable on Account of the Personnel.

The state can neither choose nor suitably direct the personnel charged with this extremely delicate work required for repairing the apparatus and giving exchange connections.

The recruiting is made by recommendation.

The personnel is disgusted at the shameless favoritism which crops out at every point.

Under such conditions we need not be astonished if the work is incompetent.

The State Is Incompetent From a Commercial Point of View.

The state has neither commercial nor industrial aptitude. It is equally ignorant of the cost price and the returns of the telephone service. The personnel, life employees, advance automatically and are not interested in the development and efficiency of the service.

Instead of trying to increase its patronage the administration does everything possible to drive away new subscribers.

What would we think of a merchant who should be afraid of having too many patrons?

These are the causes of the failures of the administration, and there is but one remedy:

The telephone can only be reorganized with the aid of private industry.

Up to the present we had not proposed this solution. We still treasured the illusion of the reform which the government could make. We had loyally tried to collaborate with it, to calm the enraged subscribers. Today, after the last and striking avowal of inefficiency which the administration has given, the measure is overflowing.

Therefore the state needs the cooperation of private industry to solve the telephone question.

Only a private industry can raise without difficulty the necessary capital and within two or three years furnish a telephone service equivalent to present needs. Only private industry, which has not its hands tied by red tape bureaucracy, can rapidly execute a programme of reform. Only a private enterprise would know how to choose a staff of employees withdrawn from political influences and capable of satisfying its patrons, likewise competent and efficient managers interested directly and personally in the prosperity of the business.

A company whose capital is at stake would do everything to increase its revenue. On the other hand, like all good merchants, it would exert itself to satisfy its patrons and to increase the number of its subscribers and its receipts both to the satisfaction of the public and the profit of the state.

Telephone subscribers, are you satisfied?

Have you realized any noticeable betterment of the service during the last four years?

Your answer is a unanimous "No."

Do you wish a reform?

Yes, without doubt.

Very well. You represent a large number. Remember, then, you have also the power. Divided, you are powerless against the administration. United, you can force the bureaucracy, which knows its own incapacity, to capitulate. You can force the government and the chambers to do your bidding.

The hour has come to act energetically and to show that we no longer intend to be ridiculed.

The more numerous and united we are the more powerful we will be.

In their own interest all subscribers must join us.

Let every one join the Association of Telephone Subscribers.—Marquis de Montebello, President of the Association of Telephone Subscribers.
